MacroAir Fans Joins the Excitement at the 2017 AHR Tradeshow

MacroAir showcases new products and innovations at the world's largest HVACR marketplace

The inventors of the HVLS fan bring exciting new products and innovations to this year's AHR Exposition. The MacroAir team, including engineers and application specialists, will be at Booth N7009 in the Las Vegas Convention Center, January 30-February 1, 2017. MacroAir's new multi-fan controllers, as well as its new residential/commercial ceiling fan – Aeratron – will be showcased.

MacroAir's new multi-fan controller identifies and dictates the optimal operating speed and direction for the fans based on the facility's temperature and humidity. This eliminates the need to constantly monitor and adjust the fans' speed and direction in response to temperature fluctuations. Automation enables the fans to be fully optimized, maximizes energy efficiency, and provides continuous comfort.

With its new residential/commercial ceiling fan – Aeratron – MacroAir now offers an entirely gearless fan line ranging from 4-24 feet in diameter. Aeratron's sophisticated design, durable components, and efficient performance continue MacroAir's mission to provide powerful, cost-effective cooling solutions throughout the world. MacroAir is the only company with a completely gearless fan line.
